General Information

In view of the epidemic of COVID-19 worldwide, the 8th International Symposium on Refractories (8th ISR), which was scheduled on October 16-18, 2020 in Wuhan, Hubei Province, China, has been rearranged to be held online and offline on October 15-17, 2021. The ISR 2021 is co-sponsored by the Chinese Ceramic Society (CCS) and the Chinese Society for Metals (CSM) and co-organized by CCS's Refractories Branch and Wuhan University of Science and Technology. ISR is held once every four years, with CCS and CSM as the first sponsor in turn. It has by so far been successfully held 7 times. The theme for ISR 2021 is Innovation, Green and Development.

The conference invites and encourages scholars and experts in the field of refractory materials at home and abroad, refractory societies and associations, production and trading companies and representatives from upstream and downstream industries to participate in and to contribute to the conference, so as to promote extensive exchanges and cooperations among Chinese and international colleagues.

Theme

Innovation, Green and Development

Topics

1. Green development of refractories industry
2. Safety, environmental friendliness and recycling solutions
3. Refractories for iron and steel industry
4. Refractories for cement, glass, nonferrous and other emerging sectors
5. Advanced refractory raw materials
6. Advanced techniques and facilities for production, testing, evaluation and installation
7. Fundamentals, education, innovation and standardization
8. Others

Language

The working language of the symposium is optionally bilingual in English or Chinese. Simultaneous interpretation will be provided for presentations.

Call for Papers

Abstracts and papers should be in English. Please submit your abstract (under 400 Words) through the conference website before May 30, 2021. Full paper in PDF version should be submitted by August 31, 2021. When submitting your abstract and full paper, please mark a most suitable topic among those listed above. Please refer to the conference website for the format requirements of full paper.

The conference website is: isr2021.ceramsoc.com

Abstract brochure and electronic version of conference proceedings will be provided to registered participants.
